Dr. Stocker was announced to speak at Memorial hall to-night on "Christian Socialism."

Although admission was by ticket, a large number of socialists took possession of the hall and created great disorder. They hooted Dr. Stocker, and unfurled red flags. The "Marseillaise" was sung, and the platform was carried with cheers for the "next revolution." Dr. Stocker was finally obliged to retire, and the meeting afterward dispersed.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S REMAINS.

They are Still in the Monument at Springfield and Beyond the Reach of Choults! Hands.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Nov. 15 .- A sensational dispatch from this city in relation to Abraham Lincoln's body appears in a Chicago paper of this date. Its statements are, some them, positively untrue, and many of them unauthorized by any one having knowledge of the facts. The whole articie is calculated to mislead the people into believing that the body of Lincoln has been removed from the massive structure in which they are supposed it to be resting. The state register of this city some time ago in response to the question. Where are the re-mains of Mr. Lincoln deposited at present, and are they turning to stone? published the following answer over the signature of J. C. Power, custodian of the monument:

iollowing answer over the signature of J. C. Power, custodian of the monument:

A few days previous to the dedication of the monument on On. 15, 1574, the body of Mr. Liuchin was taken from an iron coffin, put in a lead one, and soldered perfectly sir tight, and then to a wo den one made of narrow strips of red cedar, and all put is the marble sarcopingus in the catacombs of the monument. When the wand-be robbers visited it on the evening of Nov. 7, 1576, they removed the lid and end piece of the sarcopingus lext the door and drew the worden and lead coffins, with the body inclosed, party out, when they were disturbed by officers of the United States secret service, who attempted to capture them, but were unsuccessful. Everything remained as the thieves left it until the site mon of the second day, when every screw in the woodes coffin was examined, and the creases in them—one and all—were found to be filled with rust, proving beyond a doubt that neither the wooden nor lead coffins had been opened. All was then pushed back into the sarcopingus, and it was comented perfectly as then see that the time the visit of the thieves. The remains have never been removed from the monument from that to the present time, and sit is absolutely safe. As to the indications of petrification, the idea of any substance in an air tight lead inclosure turning to stone, no malter where it may be placed, is too absurd for a reument's zerious thought.

This statement ought to settle all doubt as to Lincoln's body resting in the tomb pre-pared for it by the people and nation. At Associated Press reporter called on Mr. Power this evening to ask if he had any re-ply to make to the dispatch referred to above. He said his card embraced the facts as the public was entitled to know them, and that he had only these words to add: "No part of the remains of Abraham Lincoln has been seen by mortal eye since they were soldered up in a lead coffin on Oct b. 1874, two years before the attempt of thieves to steal the body. As I have already said they are absolutely safe, just as they were placed in the coffin many years ago."

TWO VIEWS OF IT.

Mr. Cox and Mr. Randall Upon the Speakership Contest.

Randall Thinks Carlisle is Mistaken, and Cox Says Both Are Deceived.

> Exectal Dispatch. MR. BANDALL.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 .- Mr. Samuel J. Randall came into town to-day in improved health. He declined to be interviewed, but his faithful lieutenant, Mr. Michael Sullivan, talked quite freely, while Mr. Randall sat close at hand.

"This talk of Carlisle's is all brag and "This talk of Carlisle's is all brag and bluster," he said. "Mr. Bandall will undoubtedly be elected speaker. He has not been at Washington, but he has lots of friends there working for him. This thing reminds me of the fight four years ago when Mr. Blackburn, of Kentucky, was Mr. Randall's chief opponent and Carlisle his most zealous supporter. When it came to a ballot we beat them easily, as we will do this year. I can't give you a table of how the different delegations will youe, but I'll say this: That the only correct vote, but I'll say this: That the only correct item in Carlisle's table, printed in yesterday's New York Herald, is the statement that Ran-

New York Herald, is the statement that Handall will get 12 votes from Pennsylvania and 21 from New York, which is the democratic strength from both states.

"Carlisle counts upon getting almost a solid vote from the south and the west, but he will be greatly mistaken. There are 195 democratic members, and Mr. Randall will have at least 125 of them when the roll is called."

MR. COX.
The Hen. S. S. Cox has established his headquarters at Willard's and yestorday, his first day there, was an extremely busy one, The room was filled with his friends most of the time, and every attempt at an interview was broken up by fresh arrivals. Last night, just before he went home, he said in answer to a general question about the speak-

"I have not seen many congressmen There are not many here, but I have received some unexpected accessions of received some unexpected accessions of strength to-day. You know the unexpected always possesses an element of beauty and loveliness. Several gentlemen upon whom I have not counted came in to-day and offered their votes and assistance, I suppose, because I am one of the oldest fellows, or something of that zers."

of that sort."

Mr. Cox gave no figures to show how many votes he claimed, and rather ridicaled other candidates for so doing by saying, "the truth is that the calculations and deductions thus far made are based on a company of fifteen, which is the exact number of democratic congressmen now in the city."

"Just the number of members in the electoral commission," suggested one of the the seven."

In speaking of his manner of conducting the canvass, Mr. Cox said: "My running; if done at all, must be done in the light. I have no ways that are dark."

Being asked if he meant to intimate that his opponents had that sort of ways, he replied only by enigmatical questions: "Will blue grass inebriate? Will hemp hang?"

"Mr. Randall's republican friends give him credit for being a wily and wary man," suggested a visitor.

"I never said so," replied Mr. Cox, and ther he put in more enigmatical questions: "Will pigiron weigh? Will coal burn? Together they have elected two speakers. I am a candidate for one place only."

Referring to the slighting way in which his canvass has been frequently mentioned, Mr. Cox said: "This talk of my being complimented—for what, I wonder?—and that the New York delegation is eager to rush to Ken-tucky and Pennsylvania for their arbiter on rules and their compounder of state clixirs is too ridiculous. New York is not a 'tender' to the other states, and if she is the tender is generally ahead of the train. I am on the Prosperous Union Pacific,

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 .- The officers of the Union Pacific Railroad company informed the Evening Post that the decrease in the gross earnings of the Union Pacific for the months of September and October together will not be greater than $200,000, as compared with the same months last year. At the same rate of operating expenses as last year, 47 per cent, this would imply a decrease of probably $125,000 in the net earnings of the two months. But it is well understood that there has been some cutting of rates by the competition of the Denver and Rio Grande. and also that the Union Pacific company has been building and operating considerable new mileage of branch lines not completed yet. These two items may have increased the proportion of operating expenses to 51.45 per cent.; and if this was the case during the two months the decrease of the gross earnings and the increase of operating expenses to-gether would make an approximate decrease of say $250,000 in the net earnings for the two months. The company closed the last official year with a surplus over all dividends, interest, &c. of $2.340,107. and there is no probability that it will fail to carn and pay the same divicends for the current year and have a large surplus still. The year and have a large surplus still. company's Oregon short line will be pleted to a connection with the Oregon way and Navigation company's line by next June or July, which will give the Union Pacific a shorter line from Chicago to Portland. Western Ticket Rates Adjusted. CHICAGO, Nov. 15 .- The passenger agents of the Chicago and Kansas City railways met here to-day for the purpose of considering the troubles in regard to passenger rates. The Rock Island road complained that tickets on the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Council Bluffs and New Orleans and Denver roads had been brought into Kansas City and sold at cut rates, whereupon the Rock Island made the cut to $10. It was agreed to discipline the offending roads unless the sale of cut rate tickets was stopped. The meeting also agreed to restore and maintain the rates between Chicago and Kansas City.

Rev. Dr. Edwards, chairman of the special ommittee on the Quarterly Review in his report, said:

"It is unnecessary to do anything more than to recommend the Quarterly on its own merits to the patronage of the members of the Vir-ginia conference and to the church and public ginia conference and to the church and public generally represented by the body of ministers and laymen composing the conference. This the committee does on the ground that the Methodist Episcopal Church South ought to have its own Quarterly Review. Its position makes this demand imperative. It would be a derogation of the claims of Southern Methodism to an equal rank with the leading denominations of the south not to sustain its own Quarterly."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15 .- It is too soon after what so recently occurred for me to undertake to advise you in regard to mat-ters at home. I will say this: That as soon as the committee of forty appointed to make come to 1 th Danville and make a speech out in the open air to all the people, if the weather will per-mit, otherwise in any suitable hall that can se obtained for the purpose. Be of good cheer; the loyal heart of the north is not deaf nor dead, but in sympathy with us. The bold, resolute, and determined white men of Virginia that have been our friends are not dismayed; but they will rise again and help us in the great movement so auand help us in the great movement so auspiciously begun. The true republicanism of the country has awakened to a full sense of its duty, and the responsibility of what took place in Danville and elsewhere in our state during the late canvass, a few days beforejand on election day, has been placed where it belongs.

I have faith in the underlying and holy principles of the true republican party. The

I have faith in the underlying and holy principles of the true republican party. The darkest hour is just before dawn. Revolutions go forward, not backward. As colored men let us remember what we were twenty years ago, and then think what we are to-day. Make the contrast, then you and all of us can thoroughly comprehend the precessity for our having feith in the recoils. necessity for our having faith in the people that saved the union. Rest assured that the loyal north will not suffer our political exist-ence to die out. We helped save the union in the darkess hour of American history that union saved will not desert its faithful allies. Very truly, your friend, GEORGE M. AENOLD, Everybody and Nobody Apparently Responsible for the Proteus Failure.

Everybody Seems to Have Had a Hand in Preparing the Instructions,

And Nobody to Have Comprehended Them After They Were Prepared and Delivered.

At the Proteus court of inquiry yesterday Gen. Hazen's examination was resumed. A series of written questions were read by Gen. Poe and answered by Gen. Hazen, bringing out in more succinct form the important house of said county, That if any person shall points covered by the evidence of yesterday. Referring to the publication of reports ap-parently upon authority from the signal office about supplemental instructions to Lieut. Garlington to land stores at Littleton island. Gen. Hasen said he was absent in Washington territory when the publications were made, and knew of his own knowledge nothing. Since his return he had made inquiries, and it seemed that some such inclination had hear given out by Lieut. Caviere tion had been given out by Liout Caxiare.

By the court: "Why, in view of your testimony on the subject, was a defective copy, or any copy of the memorandum, sent to the secretary of war for the secretary of the navy after the disaster was known? Was there any object; if so, what was it?" object; if so, what was it?"
Gen. Hazen. "I know nothing about that.
It all occurred in my absence. I never know that there was any copy, correct or defective, witness was asked if he did not think, under the circumstances, Lieut, Garlington should have been present at the loading of the stores on the Protous, so as to know where they were placed.

Gen. Hazen said he did not think he was in fault is directing them to be loaded by the sergeant, who had loaded stores before and knew all about them. He thought it better that Lieut. Garlington should remain with his men. Two of the men selected by Licut. Garlington himself had deserted, and there was danger that all would go. There would have been no difficulty about it, but for the failure of the sergeant to do his duty. He would say that the sergeant was just married before he started, and witness behaved that was what acted man his mind to lieved that was what acted upon his mind to come back, and that caused all the difficulty about the stores.

about the stores.

Gen. Poe (sotto voce). "There's the woman in the case." [Laughter.]

The recorder asked if, in view of the failure of the expedition of 1882, and of the difficulties experienced in obtaining suitable men, it was not witness's opinion that the whole matter of relief should have been interested to the store of t whole matter of relief should have been intrusted to the navy.

Gen. Hazen. If the navy had taken the work from the beginning it would have been elaborated and carried on as far as it was by the army, I would say that the army should have it to complete. There was an amount of detail in complete. There was an amount of detail in the work in which a great many matters were vital that might not have been transferred intelligently. Witness thought is would have been better had the instructions to the commanders of both vessels been pro-pared after consultation.

No further questions being asked by the recorder or the court, Lieut. Garlington asked and received permission to question the witness.

"General, did you ever discuss with me the propriety of changing Mr. Greety's instructions, in so far as they related to landing stores on the way north at Lutleton island, or in it vicinity?"

"No; unless there was some expression made at the time that you brought me the memorandum. I thought, when the matter was first brought to my attention, that I had conversed with you upon that subject; but, upon further consideration, I don't know that I did, further than what I have slated to this court."

Q. In that conversation did you say anything to stated to this court."

Q. In that conversation did you say anything to me which would lead me to think it my duty to adopt that memorandum as a suggestion from you?—A. Nothing further than the mere statement or than the facts before you might suggest to yourself when you arrive? there.

Q. Did you order any one to furnish me with a copy of that memorandum?—A. No.

Q. Did you know it had been furnished me until I showed it to you!—A. No.

Q. Was I not correct in my conclusion that I was not to allow the movements of the Yamtic to inter-tere in any way with my progress to the northward?—A You were especially directed by me not to permit the Yamtic to interfere with your movements, or to hinder your movements north-ward; if it appeared that she could not proceed with you, you were to go on doing the best you could without her.

Q. Do you not think I carried out the spirit of my instructions not to stop at Littleton island and leave a great part of my stores on my way north?— A. I do.

Gen. Hazen said there was one little statement he would like to make with regard that "memoraudum," viz: that he had no recol-lection of it until it was brought to him by Mr. Garlington; he snight have seen it, but had no recollection of it. In answer to ques-tions by the recorder Gen. Hazen said that Mr. Garlington and his men were not given permission to go from New York to St. John's on the Alhambra because he (Gen. Hazen) thought that the Yantic, being a war vessel, had better facilities for maintaining discipline.

Q. Does it not appear now very clearly that if the materials for the depot had been provided and stored in the Proteus, and materials for a similar depot had been provided and stored on the Yante, with ins ructions that they be landed on the way up at Littleton island or Life Bost cove, or some neighboring place, it would undoubtedly have contributed greatly to the chances of Greely's safety, especially if they had been so stored that they could have been landed with very little time 7—A. Yes; I think the more vessels with that material the greater the chance of safety.

Q. If Lieut, Greely should be on his way now from Discovery harbor, do you think he would have supplies sufficient on his route on the west shore of Smith sound to support his party confortably until he gets to Cape Sabins ?—A. Yes; I do. pline.

I do.,

Q Sufficient to keep him in comfort all win-ter?—A. I think so, with the native food which he would secure.

After recess Licut. Caziare, in charge of the division of correspondence and records, was placed in the witness chair and gave in narrative form his knowledge of the outfitting of the relief expedition of 1883. Preparations for it were begun in the fall of after the return of the expedition of that year, and Lieut. Garlington and some enlisted men from the department of Dakota were selected for it. The division of Arctic observation and research was at that time in charge of Capt. Ciapp, of the 16th infantry, and continued so until he was directed to turn it over to Licut. Garlington, in February, 1883. Capt. Clapp, however, remained as an advisory officer to the chief signal officer on account of throughout the country is now increasing at familiarity with the history of Arctic expeditions of former years.

The instructions to Lieut, Garlington were begun in the latter part of April. The first or rough draft was prepared by Capt. Clapp, who had been called by Gen. Hazen to submit a project of instructions. Those instruccharge of divisions for suggestions. By an order May 16, the officers had been directed to make marginal notes of corrections. Gen. Hazen left for St. Johns on the eighteenth of May to arrange for the charter of a vessel, and in the meantime Capt. Powell, of the 16th infantry, was assigned to duty as acting chief signal officer, and the reports of the vari-ous officers were submitted to him. new copy was made on a type writer, and held to await Gen.
